

Manage Google Groups

- Google Groups are communication groups that are primarily used as email lists at MLML.
- Some Google Groups (like `students` and `staff`) are operated by SJSU IT, but you can create a Group for any purpose, like for your lab, or a project that you're working on.
- To view a directory of MLML's Google Groups, click this link:

<https://mlml.sjsu.edu/intranet/google-groups-directory/>

Create a Google Group:

- Go to groups.sjsu.edu in your browser.
 - (if you need to view Groups in the old mlml.calstate.edu domain, go to groups.google.com while logged into your MLML Google account)
- Click Create group in the top left.

- Enter the name for your group. Add "mlml-" to the beginning of the name, to distinguish your group from other groups in the SJSU domain

Change Group Settings:

- Go to groups.sjsu.edu.
- Locate the group that you wish to view/change settings for in the list of "My Groups" and click on it.
- Click Group settings in the list on the left:

- Here you can view and change settings for your group.
- If you want to allow group members who do not have SJSU Google Accounts, use the Allow external members setting under the General section:

View and Manage Google Group Members

- Go to groups.sjsu.edu.
- Locate the group that you wish to view/change settings for in the list of "My Groups" and click on it.
- Click People in the left sidebar:

- Here you can view the members of your group, and change settings for each member.
- You can also remove members from here.
- You can add members by clicking Add members at the top
